The Emory Wheel is currently the only independent, student-run newspaper of Emory University and the greater Atlanta area. It is published daily online and printed once a week during the academic year.

The Wheel is financially and editorially independent from the University. All of its content is generated by more than 100 student staff and contributing members, and its printing costs are covered by profits from self-generated advertising sales.

The Wheel is proud to have won more than 100 awards for its journalism.
